This invention was designed to aid in the organization and grouping together of cosmetic products. Its purpose is to securely hold the cosmetic product such as, lipsticks and eye/lip pencils by its cap.

This invention is made of an elastic substance (ie. neoprene). It is produced by dye cutting and/or mould injecting.

This invention will hold up to thirty-five cosmetic items, per unit. The elasticity of the material of this invention will allow various sizes and shapes of cosmetic products to be held securely. The shape of this invention will vary in size from square, to rectangular, to circular. A series of holes in the material of this invention will allow for placement of the cosmetic product.

Lipsticks or pencils will be placed into this invention, cap down. To ensure proper placement, half of cap must be secured into one of the holes of this invention. Lipstick/pencil labels are clearly visible to allow for easy selection of shade. Remove lipstick/pencil base, while its cap remains secured in this invention. After use, return lipstick/pencil base to the cap in this invention.
